Credit: Mark Pazniok SHARE By of the Some prospective free agents have become available on the market, and after meeting with Pittsburgh Steelers officials on Saturday, at least two of them could provide some big name options for Philadelphia. With the franchise's new CBA in place, teams can no longer restructure contracts, which means players such as defensive end Ziggy Hood, safety William Gay and tight end Matt Spaeth have become available. On the open market, the Steelers could be aggressive in free agency in the wake of key changes made this year that will affect the team's salary cap as well as their ability to make splash signings. The new CBA calls for salary cap floor for 2010 at $45.1 million and the cap is projected to rise to more than $51 million. Still, after restructuring contracts in 2009, the Steelers are left with more than $30 million to spend this year. That figure is still less than the cap spending projections for 2010 and 2011 but higher than 2009. "I think there's a chance (of us signing free agents)," Steelers vice president for football operations Kevin Colbert said. "We're probably looking for the right deal, we'll see what happens. That was a very short meeting. "We've met with a lot of players." Among the players the Steelers met with were Hood, Gay and Spaeth, but no team was at the meeting, Colbert said. Also at the meeting with the Steelers was wide receiver Jason Avant, who said he would return to the team for the 2009 season. The 31-year-old Avant, who had 38 catches for 517 yards and two touchdowns last season, will be entering the final season of a four-year deal signed before the 2008 season
