, In The Hunter 2012, each player is given a card that has a digit number on it. The digit number is his number rank. The highest digit of the card is the digit of the player's current score. If the player performs a "perfect round" (placing a mark on the board which is at least digits from every other player's board) he scores the number of the digit corresponding to the place where the mark is placed. However, if the player hits the target but does not have a perfect round, the number is not added to his score.

There is a 3 digit score limit for the number of perfect rounds which must be completed. If the player scores a perfect round while there are still other perfect rounds available, his score will go down to the point where the target would have been reached (meaning he will have completed an incomplete perfect round). If at any time the player has no more perfect rounds available, he must declare "Out", and must score the highest digit in the final ranking instead. Any player that fails to score one of the available digits is eliminated from the game. It is possible to be the last player standing with no scores to the target, or if the target is reached by someone other than the player being ranked. The team is made up of the players with the best digit scores.

Once all the digits have been taken, the team with the lowest digit score is declared the winner. If the game is a tie, or no one has a perfect round, a tie-breaker game is played, with each player taking turns starting with the one with the lowest digit score.

If both players have the same digit score, one digit at a time is eliminated until the target is reached. The Hunter 2012 - ENG - Full Game Team! M-J-R! game download.
