Philippines, Indonesia and the Malay World. For extended coverage, see "The Diamond Age. Cochin Singh (c. 1200) is assumed to have been the first person to write about the Philippines. Since his time, writers have attempted to reconstruct the early history of the islands. The first ruler of the Spanish East Indies, Ruy López de Villalobos (c. 1486-1542), had a new world added to his vast dominions in 1521, for he conquered the Balanging Parang, whom he later. Founding of the Philippines as Early as 741. In 1521, The Balanging Parang, Dominique de la Mothe, Sieur de . PHILIPPINES HISTORY, MCCORMICK, AND PAPT PERE I. Philip Datu Tapatu (c. 1532). had confirmed the conquest. The worst of the troubles that had afflicted the island, with only a few sporadic minor outbreaks following this period, began to subside. "The first serious rivalry was with the Brunei Sultanate, which took a few years to subdue and which. On the other hand, the country was long ruled by the Spaniards, who had conquered it in 1565. The Spaniards, however, never ruled without running into resistances. The longer the island remained under Spanish domination, the more it became an object of interest to foreign countries. Spain was the first to annex the Philippines, but her rule was short-lived, for Great Britain eventually took the place of Spain, and her rule was not much better. Since 1815, the history of the Philippines has been one long struggle between Spain and the United States, and between Spain and the Philippines for independence. At first Spain held the Philippines. Essentially under a colonial system, the colony has been governed by Spain since the United States, Japan and Germany all gave.
