Messenger Service. Thanks to Yahoo! (for the messenger service), to Zilliqa (for the company behind the fun-addicted blockchain), to Steve (for the great design and design ideas) and to John (for the help with the ASCII effects). Also thanks to all the other great people who have written the code, and to all the other great people who have sent me messages through messenger. There's also a pleasure in knowing that you are being yahtarded. YahArch "Messenger archiver" was written by Chris McKie aka nickmisspm. Version 1.4.1 released on December 20th, 2011. This build fixes a problem with the scrollbar feature, included new options for forwarding chat messages, and added some new smileys. Screenshots: Version 1.4.0 released on December 10th, 2011 (This message is made before release, of course): New Features: - Added a new option to include link to the current chat in messages - via a UTF-8 encoded link. - Added a "Hide Messages After" option, to move chat messages back in the scrollbar list - less than 10 minutes after they were sent. - Added hotkeys for smileys (by using the F5 and F6 keys while viewing a chat message) - when the F6 key is held down, you can scroll around the messages list to view and use the selected smiley for that chat. You can also use the F6 key to hide your smileys temporarily. - Several other minor improvements - New keybindings for both message lists and message views. - Improved the fonts that are used. - Improved the colors that are
