Take a look at the A: Demo: Step by step tutorial: Maternal-fetal transposition of the great arteries in monozygotic twins. Maternal-fetal transposition of the great arteries is a rare congenital heart disease found in monozygotic twins that usually affects one twin, who is frequently in shock on presentation. We report two cases of identical twins affected with this disorder. Both twins presented in shock at the time of diagnosis and underwent a series of surgical procedures. The two cases demonstrate the diversity of approaches used in the treatment of this malformation._

1. Field of the Invention This invention relates to a method for applying a surface treatment to a substrate, such as a glass substrate for a flat panel display. The invention also relates to a coating apparatus for use in the method, as well as to a surface-treated substrate produced by the method.

2. Description of the Related Art Some types of display device, such as a liquid crystal display (LCD) and a field emission display (FED), require surface treatment to control the orientation of liquid crystals and to emit electrons, respectively. One conventional method for applying a surface treatment to a substrate, such as a glass substrate for a display device, is illustrated in FIG. 5 of the accompanying drawings. Referring to FIG. 5, a glass substrate 10, which has already been subjected to anodic oxidation treatment to form a surface layer 12 thereon, is held on a carrier 14 by suction. The glass substrate 10 is then transferred from the carrier 14 into a chamber 16 in which a metal surface treatment is applied to the substrate 10. The chamber 16 is supplied with pure gas, such as helium, in order to avoid oxidation of the metal surface treatment applied to the substrate 10. The chamber 16 is further supplied with pure gas such as hydrogen, carbon dioxide and carbon monoxide to form a hydrolytic film on the surface layer 12 of the substrate 10. The chamber 16 is then supplied with a wetting liquid, such as aqueous glycerin, so that the surface layer 12 of the substrate 10 is wetted by the wetting liquid. The chamber 16 is then subjected to a surface treatment, such as ion sputtering or ion plating, for depositing a metal, such as titanium, on the surface layer 12. The chamber 16 is finally purged with pure gas such as nitrogen, so that the chamber 16 is purged of the residual wetting liquid. The conventional method as outlined above suffers from a drawback. Specifically, during the step of transferring the substrate 10 from the carrier 14 into the chamber 16, there is a possibility that the surface layer 12 of the substrate 10 may undergo oxidation by the oxygen in the air. In addition, during the treatment in the chamber 16, the surface layer 12 of the substrate 10 may oxidize further by the residual oxygen in the chamber 16. Thus, the quality of the surface treatment applied to the substrate 10 may deteriorate, particularly, when the surface treatment is performed on a large substrate.
