Can anyone explain to me why the following sound snippet doesn't play the sound in the loop? backgroundSound = [[AVAudioPlayer alloc] initWithContentsOfURL:soundURL error:&error]; backgroundSound.delegate = self; backgroundSound.numberOfLoops = 10; [backgroundSound play]; I'm a noob. A: Some future Safari version may be just about to push a new update that stops this sort of javascript. If you do this and it doesn't work, try writing your own update function that uses gCD and sleeps a couple of seconds between your gCD calls, and let it play for a while and see if it gets stuck. Specifically with your code above, you should be using: backgroundSound = [[AVAudioPlayer alloc] initWithContentsOfURL:soundURL error:&error]; backgroundSound.numberOfLoops = 10; backgroundSound.delegate = self; [backgroundSound play]; ... for certain at least. I just got bitten by this with my other app, which I thought was behaving similar. uma lista que inclui esse valor: $(function() { var $tbl = $('table.data'); $tbl.dataTable({ responsive: true, "pagingType": "full_numbers" }); $("#data-inicio, #data-fim").on("change", function () { var limite = $(this).val(); var limite_id = $(this).val(); $("#grafica").val(limite); $('#data-inicio').each(function() {
