... .. has received a list of ads for which it will request payment to us on your behalf. In addition, the publisher has selected a number of ads for which it would like to exclude. To do this, it has informed us that it has set up a unique identifier for each ad that you can use in your browser to exclude that ad. For example, you can tell your browser to block ads with a certain identifier. To be able to use these identifier codes, the browser needs access to an online database of this information. By using these codes, you can avoid ads from these advertisers appearing on your computer, tablet or mobile phone. What you should know: • We do not have access to, or control over, any of the ad data that you share with us. • We only send the data you ask us to to the advertiser, or to the ad network (if you select to share your data with an ad network) and not to any other third party. publisher/advertiser can remove any of the ads it has previously selected, or any that you have added to your list by clicking the “Click here to Unblock Ads” button. This is the case for both the ads that the publisher/advertiser added to your list and any ad you added yourself. For both this functionality and the ads that the publisher/advertiser has added to your list, we provide the unique identifier to the publisher/advertiser. If the publisher/advertiser then removes these ads from your list, you will be able to view the ads again by clicking the “Click here to Unblock Ads” button. Please note that the following guidelines do not apply to you: • The advertiser/publisher is responsible for ads that appear on its site. • We cannot guarantee that the ads you see will be from the publisher/advertiser you are connected to. • When an advertiser/publisher removes ads from its site, we will no longer be able to help you to view them. • If an advertiser/publisher provides us with an identifier and you choose to use it, you are solely responsible for any fraud or misuse that occurs. This service is not available to users on the Chrome browser on Android and IOS devices. If the publisher/advertiser wants to use this service on these platforms it will need to contact us. Mobile devices are increasingly popular and in order to offer a high level of usability, the screen size must be maximized. However, the small screen space can hinder mobile users. In addition, when visiting web sites, one may prefer the full-screen view and the ability to scroll back up to review previous pages. The App2SD tool has been developed to help you manage your mobile devices screen resolution. It allows you to create, if you wish, several folders for the device, each containing a specific screen resolution. As a result, it allows you to choose between standard or higher screen resolution. In addition, this simple to use application allows you to choose between two different styles for the screen resolution folder. To change the style, just click on the desired style. If you want to make the change permanent, you can set the corresponding default style. To do so, choose "Default" from the "Default Style" menu and then click "OK" to save it. You can also create custom styles, but for that you need to choose "Custom" from the "Default Style" menu and then click "OK" to save the style. You can change the default theme in the "Options" menu by clicking on the theme of your choice. The application allows you to create and manage the folders for your mobile devices screen resolution. Access to the folders you create is easy: click on the folders in the "Menu" menu and select the desired folder. Click on the "OK" button to activate it. Click on the "Apply" button to put the folder into effect. The application remembers the default style and the default theme for the folder, and applies them when you first use the application. Click on the "Options" menu and then select the desired setting from the "Resolution" menu.
