KEYMACRO is a special type of screensaver that can be set to any keystroke, including screen clicks and sound. It also has an option for an alarm to be played and a sound to be played. It has great multitasking features, so you can have 3 different screensaver shows going at once. You can have your screensaver play an alarm or sound at different times to wake you from sleep. Also, if you have more than 1 monitor, you can have a different screensaver on each. The screensavers are easy to set up. Just open the program, and select "Create Screen Saver".

Michael Heffernan (born August 2, 1948) is an American novelist and historian. Heffernan was born in Providence, Rhode Island, and graduated from Providence College with a B.A. in English in 1970. He earned his M.A. in English from Johns Hopkins University in 1973. He is currently an associate professor of English and chairman of the graduate writing program at Keene State College in Keene, New Hampshire. Career Heffernan has published five novels. His first, The Keeper of the Temple, was inspired by his interest in working-class life in Providence. The Keeper of the Temple won the Flannery O'Connor Award for Short Fiction. His second novel, The Darkening Field, explores the obsession of a fictional novelist. Set in the time of Thomas Wolfe, it explores the attempts of a fictional version of himself to publish a novel. "The Darkening Field" received the 1992 Fiction Award from the National Council of Teachers of English. His third novel, Satan's Bedfellows, was a National Book Critics Circle Award Finalist in 1992. His fourth novel, A False Mirror, was published in 1999, a year before his retirement from Keene State College. It won the 2000 Flannery O'Connor Award for Short Fiction. Heffernan's work has appeared in the New York Review of Books, the New York Times, and the Washington Post Book World. His first book, The Keeper of the Temple, was made into a film of the same name by David Holm in 1994. He has also published two non-fiction works of history, Thomas Wolfe: the Art of His Life and Art of His Novels (1992) and George Washington and the Politics of Landscape: Art, Power, and the Creation of the American Empire (1998).
