Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a copper-based sintered body and a method of manufacturing the same. More specifically, the present invention relates to a copper-based sintered body which is manufactured by applying an additive to a copper-based sintered body in the form of a slurry containing raw materials, and a method of manufacturing the same. 2. Description of the Related Art In recent years, a high-density integrated circuit and a silicon semiconductor, both of which are integrated on a base substrate, have been made smaller in size and lighter in weight, with increase in the integration of the semiconductor, and the packaging density thereof has increased. To meet the demand for downsizing of the packages, an inductor, a chip capacitor and so on, which are used for high-frequency transmission lines or the like, have been decreased in size. With downsizing of the chip capacitor, a technology for downsizing the parts in the capacitor is also applied to a multilayer ceramic capacitor which is a capacitor at high capacity. To form a capacitor at high capacity, it is necessary to align the internal electrode layers at high density, and to expand the space between the internal electrodes in order to increase the area for mounting of the electric capacity without increasing the size of the ceramic sintered body. When increasing the space between the internal electrodes in order to increase the electric capacity, a problem of a low electric capacity results from expansion in the xy directions of the sintered body, and the internal electrodes cannot be positioned at high density. In order to solve the problem of expansion in the xy directions, a method of forming internal electrode layers having different thicknesses and different line widths has been proposed. As one of means for forming internal electrodes having different thicknesses, a method of dicing a sintered body to form a plurality of pieces and then plating internal electrode layers in different thicknesses in one piece has been proposed, as disclosed in JP-A-9

I want to group these dates based on the month of the year. I want to compare the difference between two months and if it is greater than 7 days then get the closest month and take the difference between that month and the month I am comparing for. I am trying to do the calculation using below but I am very unsure how to get what I want. Is there a better way of doing this? def group_date(x): group_start_date = x.groupby(x['Date']) group_start_date.transform('min') group_months = group_start_date.groupby('month').head(1) for index, row in group_months.iterrows(): if row.diff()>=7: group_months = (group_months.max()*7)+1 else: group_months = (group_months.min()*7)+1 group_months = (group_months-group_months) date_list = [row.Date] for month in group_months: group_date = min(row.Date, key=itemgetter(1)) dates = [date_list.remove(x) for x in group_date] date_list = dates yield group_date, date_list, month A: Using a list comprehension and rolling a forward difference, you can get the relevant min from the 1cdb36666d
